

What should I already know?

- Significant people in the past did things that were important for changing the world and how we live today.

Key facts

Who was Louis Braille?

Louis Braille was a boy from France who had an accident and lost his sight when he was three years old.

What did Louis Braille invent?

Louis invented a system of raised dots that blind people can feel with their fingers. These dots form letters and numbers, helping blind people to read books and write.

Why is Braille important?

Before Braille, it was very hard for blind people to read or write. Braille gave blind people a way to learn and communicate, making their lives much better.

Key Vocabulary and definitions

Vocabulary	Definition
significant	Very important and worth remembering.
inventor	A person who creates something new.
invent:	To create something that hasn't been made before.
sight	The ability to see.
blind	Not being able to see
Braille	A system of raised dots that blind people use to read and write.
motivation	The reason why someone does something.
change	When something becomes different qualities	Parts of a person's character, like being kind or brave.

